

E. M. ENDERHILL DEAD.

Was Confederate Soldier and Former Railroad Auditor.

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS.

Austin, Tex., Feb. 6.—E. M. Underhill died at his home in this city after a lingering illness at the age of 63 years. He was a Confederate soldier, having served as Lieutenant Colonel of an Alabama regiment. Deceased became well known in this State through his connection with the Railroad Commission and the suits against the Southern Pacific for rebating. He had served the Southern Pacific as general auditor at New Orleans for many years, and left the company because of differences. Upon coming to Texas he was employed as expert in the office of the Railroad Commission, and his experience as a railroad auditor gave him such knowledge of records that he secured data of the rebate splits and convictions which occurred at that time. Having served in the Confederacy, he will be buried in the State Cemetery in this city.
